
*Teaching Reading and Writing in
New England*

NEATE Annual Fall Conference

The New England Association of Teachers of English

October 26-27, 2007

Radisson Hotel Nashua, Nashua, NH

Workshop Strands include:

- Teaching reading in the English classroom
- The transition from high school to college
- Teaching writing, the forgotten R in NCLB
- Literature of place
- Managing heterogeneity
- New England writers

Over 30 Workshops and Presentations Including:

- “Teaching Teenagers to Write: Developing Adolescent Narrative Voice in a College World Tainted by Timed, Formulaic ‘Essays’”
- “How to Become a Better Person: Read!”
- “21st Century New Electronic Portfolios”
- “Asian Authors Living and Writing in New England”
- “What is it, anyway? The Mystery of College-Level Writing”
- “Hands-on Publishing: The final step in the writing process”
- “Red-Hot Reading for High School Students-Pathway to Success”
- “A Journey into the Transcendentalists’ New England”

Friday’s Luncheon Speaker

Amy Belding Brown

Author of Mr. Emerson’s Wife

Also featuring Saturday’s Breakfast Speaker,
Thomas R. Jenn, Ph.D. of the Harvard Writing
Project and Calderwood Writing Initiative

For more information and registration form, visit

www.neate.org

The New England Association of Teachers of English

Executive Secretary

Patricia Haggerty

18 Westwood Dr.

Sturbridge, MA 01568

Treasurer

Richard West

843 Gould Hill Rd.

Contoocook, NH 03229

Please share with your colleagues!

*Teaching Reading and Writing in
New England*

NEATE Conference

October 26-27, 2007